

Here's Looking At You, Says Tokyo Tot.

DRINKING A TOAST to a U.S. farmer in reconstituted dehydrated milk imported from the U.S. is this charming kindergarten pupil in Tokyo. Increasing consumption of milk by Japan's children is making present generation noticeably taller and healthier. With proceeds from sales of exports like textiles, cameras, and dinnerware in this country, Japan annually buys millions of dollars worth of such U.S. dairy products as dry milk, butter, anhydrous milk, cheese, and ice cream mix. Along with sizeable imports of grain, cotton, and other agricultural products, this makes Japan the best foreign customer of America's farmers.

Japanese Town Witnesses Brawl with U.S. Air Police

TOKYO, (AP) — U. S. Air Police and a group of Japanese men clashed in a bloody brawl in nearby Tachikawa Sunday.

One U. S. Air Policeman was badly cut by a flying beer bottle. Another had to beat his way through an angry crowd of Japanese with his night stick.

The Air Force put an off-limits ban on two streets in the night club and bar district of the city, home of Tachikawa Air Base, America's biggest air supply terminal in Japan.

Japanese police held four Japanese men for investigation of assault. The Air Force said it does not contemplate any punishment of the airmen.

The injured Air Policeman was Airman Robert Greene, 22, of Hometown, Va. Fifteen stitches were required to close the gash in his head. The other airmen suffered only minor injuries.

Natural Gas In Kenai Seen As Big Boost For Development of Anchorage

LOS ANGELES, (AP) — His firm's contract with the Anchorage Gas Corp. makes feasible the development of natural gas reserves on the Kenai Peninsula, an Ohio oil company executive said here Friday.

And if reserves are developed, C. J. Hardwick told a Pacific Stock Exchange luncheon, fully developed industrial growth in the Anchorage area will be accelerated.

Hardwick, Ohio's executive vice president, said his company's experience elsewhere "has shown that a plentiful supply of natural gas is a strong incentive to attract industry and other business."

Tests of the new Ohio-Kenai Unit No. 1 now in the process of completion indicate a substantial gas reserve exists on the Kenai, Hardwick said.

Money is a friend in need and a need indeed.

ASTRONOMY NOTES

By OLAF HALVERSON

Astronomy is important in determining time, which is a vast convenience in all the affairs of life. Every good clock and watch has been carefully checked either directly or indirectly with an accurate clock at some astronomical observatory. The clock at the observatory has been corrected by observations of the fixed stars.

A knowledge of the precise position of the stars depends upon the faithful patience of a multitude of astronomers who have given their lives to this work in the past. It is not an exaggeration to say that there is no civilized person in existence whose comfort is not made greater and whose life is not made more worth living by the work of astronomers.

Few persons observe the day-time sky. Yet this beautiful and ever-changing spectacle may be seen and enjoyed by all. Perhaps that is one reason why it is so little thought of.

We are now having our equinoctial storms with low barometer readings.

There is a total eclipse of the sun today, but it is visible only in and around Boston at sunrise.

Large Number of Measles Cases Are Danger in Remote Native Villages

JUNEAU — From five Eskimo villages in Alaska's western Arctic coast area 105 cases of measles were reported to the Division of Health for the week ending September 18. This was 15 more than the weekly average of measles cases reported throughout Alaska during the month of August, when incidence of the disease took an upward swing.

Deaths of two infants under one year of age were reported in the outbreak in Eskimo villages, where all of the cases were among children from six months to six years of age.

"Measles continues to be a serious disease in Alaska," Dr. Harry V. Gibson, Health Division Director, said, "due to the many severe complications which may follow it."

Leopold, Paroled Slayer, Sues For $1,405,000 For Invasion of Privacy

CHICAGO, (AP) — Nathan Leopold, now on parole for his part in the slaying of Bobby Franks, is seeking $1,405,000 in damages, charging that the book and movie "Compulsion" invaded his privacy.

In a suit filed Friday in Circuit Court, Leopold named 57 defendants, including book author Meyer Levin.

Leopold's suit alleged that in the book Levin identified Leopold in the public mind as the chief character, Judd Steiner.

Leopold, 55, was freed from Stateville Prison on parole in 1958. He and Richard Loeb were convicted of the 1924 so-called thrill slaying of 14-year-old Bobby Franks on Chicago's south side. Loeb was slain in prison.
